CORRECTION TO APPEAL BRIEF

In reviewing the Appeal Brief, appellant has discovered a typographical error on page 16, line 16. The existence of the error and the intended meaning are both understandable from the context. However, to explicitly correct this error, please correct page 16, lines 13-66, to read as follows:

> To make an analogy, it may be said in a mathematical problem that 'x is a function of u and v,' for example. While this terminology does not specify an exact formula involving u and v, it does quite definitely indicate that the computation of x requires values for ~~a and b~~ u and v.
